

Women of Worth

Instead of simply celebrating Women's Month in August, we're starting conversations that matter – about money, about self-worth, about the power of women guiding women. Because when women talk openly about their financial lives, something incredible happens – they inspire others to do the same.

How we view the world of saving and investing started somewhere – usually with conversations that shaped our ideas. But who were the conversations with and how did they shape the decisions that we made later?

In celebration of Women's Month 2025, we've done something very special. We interviewed some exceptional women in our business.

Women of Worth is a Glacier video series, featuring over 20 honest, moving, and deeply human interviews. These remarkable women speak about their very first vivid memories relating to money, how their first conversations shaped their relationship with money later on and the decisions that they continue to make as women.

They talk about their mothers, grandmothers, colleagues, and friends and their daughters – the women who guided them, mentored them, and shaped their financial journeys.

It starts with One Conversation

Behind every story is a conversation that changed someone's life.
